POLK COUNTY NEWS.

The Centennial Anniversary of an Esteemed Oregon Pioneer.

Haying is progressing finely, most all of the farmers are binding and haying. Miss Jessie Rhodes and little sister, of Independence, and Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Stow, of Sheridan, are guests of the family of D. M. Guthrie.

On August 7, 1899, a reunion was held at the home of John M. Rhodes, on Luckanute, Bridgeport precinct, in honor of Willis Elliott's 100th anniversary. He was born in North Carolina, August 7, 1799. Moved from there to Indiana, then to Missouri. In 1821 he was married to Polly Vanderpool, of Ray county, Missouri. In 1823 he became a member of the old regular Baptist church of Missouri. There was born to them eleven children, six boys and five girls. Two of the boys were killed in the Civil war. There are four of his children present. One son, Kinman, of Lin county, and his daughters, Susan Rhodes, of Bridgeport; Jane Hedgpath, of Umpqua, and Tiltha Lawrence, of Lincoln county. John and James are living in Prineville and David in Idaho. The two eldest daughters, Ellen Hedgpath and Folia Donville, are in Missouri. He has 56 grand children, 399 great grand children and 56 great great grand children. Some of each generation was present. The oldest of his children is 75 or 73 years old and the youngest of his great grand children is an infant of the fifth generation. There were 38 kinsmen present. After the Civil war in 1865 he moved to Nebraska. In 1867 he came to Oregon, where he has lived ever since. Today we find him in his right mind, but quite feeble. He has a strong hope in Jesus, and is well versed in the Scriptures. We have heard him quote many passages of Scripture. Among those quoted were many verses of the Fourteenth chapter of St. John: "Let not your heart be troubled, ye believe in God, believe also in Me." Also the entire Third chapter of St. Matthew. By his request Elders Turnage and Mathe preached a sermon on the subject of the First chapter of St. John. During the time of the discourse he would often repeat after the preacher, then the preacher would remain silent and the old gentleman keep quoting the Scripture. There were 60 present. After dinner a photograph was taken, and also a family group by Millard McCaleb, of Monmouth. The day was spent pleasantly. The writer has been a friend for 60 years.

The Arion Society.
This New York musical company with six Pullman and two dining cars pulled through Salem at 11 a. m. It carries 127 New Yorkers with a full force of porters, waiters and servants, and they are seeing the country in great style. For a time five first class trains were at the Salem depot.

Recorder's Court.
John Horner was arrested this morning on his charge of $1.75. Also the entire family group by Millard McCaleb, of Monmouth. The day was spent pleasantly. The writer has been a friend for 60 years.

We Are Ready.
Anticipating that the city will be filled with visitors today, preparation has been made to feed all who come to the White Restaurant.

Judah Cased.
City Recorder N. J. Judah was today the recipient of a magnificent present from his friend Ted Burton of Co. L, who came in with Company K. It is a beautiful cane from Manila. The body of the cane is Malacca black lacquered with a globe handle, and fillagree lacquer work in gold, brown and green for a foot down the staff.

It is rare and valuable piece of work and Mr. Judah is "as proud as a monkey with a tin can."

SALEM RECEPTION

It Proves to Be a Pleasant and Patriotic Occasion.

Crowds Are Large, Good Natured and Joyous Over the Second Oregon's Return.

Showers laid the dust. The clouds cooled off the day. The sun burst out at last. Old nature made the greeting perfect.

All day people rolled and rode in to the city from all directions. Early the streets and walks were crowded. Thousands of bicycles were on the streets. It was indeed a public holiday. Carriages fluttered with flags and many business places were decorated. At 10:30 the Salem Military band, heading a procession of the Grand Army marched up State street to the depot, playing military airs and the column took a position east of the track.

THE FIRST SECTION
pulled into the station at 10:40 and immediately the gun-powder began to boom. The Southern Pacific train gave the double toot and all the whistles and bells in town began to blow. There were eight coaches and out of each window stuck a flag. The depot grounds from the water tank to the bridge was a solid mass of rejoicing people. The train had not stopped when the boys in brown uniforms began to pile out and greet friends.

At 11 a. m. the Salem National Guard company with roses stuck in their muskets counter marched past the first section and joined the Salem Grand Army escort that headed by the Salem military band formed the special escort of honor for the occasion.

At 11:30 the guard of honor of Union Veterans led off with their corps flag, the Relief Corps banner of silk and the tattered battle flag of the Second Oregon at the front, followed by the first battalion of the regiment.

The second section pulled in at 11:20 and was soon followed by the third, containing the Salem company when the cheering was renewed with further explosions of bombs and fire works. This was the climax of the whole occasion.

The Second Oregon are a fine appearing body of men physically, but few showing the effects of their hard campaign. Their only careworn look was occasioned by the loss of sleep and continual feasting since landing in Oregon.

Notes on the Day.
The reporter saw what he really went to the trains to see a returning Philippine hero meet his sweetheart. He was a stalwart fellow and she was a bright Oregon girl. In spite of the crowd their arms went around each others necks. It was "Oh, John!" and "Oh, Sarah!" and he gave a smack that brought the color to her face.

Gov. Geer and staff were on the first section and said at Roseburg there were acres of tables set and it looked as if all of Douglas sales was there. At Eugene at six o'clock five thousand people were out. It is the biggest free show the people of Oregon have ever had.

Capt. Poorman expected to see his three little boys at Salem, but hunted in vain amid the tremendous crowds. Capt. Wells, of Portland, was also warmly greeted by many Salem friends.

There was a delegation of about forty Indian school boys, in charge of Supt. Potter and all the officials and teachers of the Chemawa school.

AT THE STATE HOUSE.
The Salem ladies under Mrs. Justice Moore, all distinguished themselves by their great courtesy and hospitality in waiting on the soldiers. Mayor and Mrs. Bishop did the honors of the occasion in a very becoming manner. To get an idea of the crowd one had to go

STATE FAIR AND SALEM.

There were times when people commenced to come to the State Fair in June. Farmers would bring their wool down from Umpqua and Rogue River Valleys; after disposing of it at Salem they would lay in their yearly supplies here, and they would camp near the Fair Grounds until after the Fair. The State Fair has also brought many noted men to Salem whose intention was only to see the Fair, but they found other attractions that induced them to locate here. As in the case of the writer, (S. Friedman), came to attend the State Fair in the early sixties. He was so delighted with the surrounding country that he made Salem his permanent home. A great many others that have settled in business in Salem were first attracted here by the State Fair. It is therefore incumbent upon the majority of our citizens to make the State Fair a grand success, for the Fair has helped Salem. It is not expected for people to come and camp here for several months on account of it. Now it is no use for the hackmen to holler "All aboard for the Fair Grounds," for the railroad has changed things. But yet the people who come for the Fair usually manage to get into the city, view the town, visit the Capitol and Penitentiary and not the Insane Asylum but the Oregon State Hospital, and they go to hear the Deaf Mutes talk to them at their school. Then they go to the Blind School so as to let the blind see them, and above all, they never forget to stop and see Friedman at Friedman's New Racket, corner Commercial and State St., where they lay in their supplies of Dry Goods and Clothing.

FRIEDMAN'S NEW RACKET!

clear around the state house and all through the interior—the crush of people was tremendous.

Capt. Worrick and the Salem company were the recipients of the most cordial greetings. The captain looks very well and is as modest and business like a school boy. He fairly quailed before the storming parties of Salem belles who swarmed about him as a storm center of attack. Salem young ladies have immortalized themselves on this occasion by their gallantry and chivalry.

General Sammers is the son of modesty and mingles with his men on the most perfect terms of equality. He wears the same kacki uniform, and nowhere could be suspected of being one of the highest of American military officers, or even as high an officer as the gentleman on the governors' staff.

Capt. Harry Heath, of McMinnville is accompanied by a loyal native Philino, who is an object of universal interest. One of the companies brought a mascot in the form of a bulldog. Others have pet monkeys and some came very near being adopted as pets by Salem girls.

MAJOR WILLIS AT HOME.
No officer has been accorded a more cordial reception than Major Percy Willis, who was escorted home from the Presidio by Mrs. Willis. He was an early caller at the store of Willis Bros., where there was a regular avalanche of callers and congratulations. At Albany Major Willis, who was on the first section of the train, was given as warm a welcome as the home officers.

THE SALEM WAY
surpassed any reception that was given the regiment along the line. The dinner would have sufficed 6,000 soldiers instead of 750. There was not only an avalanche of the choicest eatables, but there was a wealth of flowers surpassing the expectation of even Salem people themselves. At 10 a. m. nearly all the business houses in town were closed. The scenes of enthusiasm were renewed as the soldiers marched to take their trains for Portland.

At 1 o'clock the soldiers all began to file back to their trains, which promptly pulled out for Portland. The governor and his staff accompany the regiment to Portland where the colors will be turned over the state authorities. It has been a great event for this city, and it has been observed in a very becoming and patriotic manner.

Another Book Typewriter.
The county officials of Marion county have purchased another Fisher Book Typewriter, this one being for use in the county recorder's office. The machine arrived and was delivered this forenoon. The first machine was purchased about two months ago for use of the county clerk since which time it has been in constant use and has given unqualified satisfaction being a great labor saver as well as a saving in book space and vault room. This machine was fully described in the columns of the DAILY JOURNAL of July 7, 1899. C. M. Lockwood the local dealer in typewriting machines is agent for Marion county for the Fisher Book Typewriter.
